60 + companies active in the European candle industry

About ECMA

The European Candle Manufacturers Association, ECMA, is an International Non-Profit Association. It was founded in 2021, after the former AECM (Association of European Candle Manufacturers) and ECA (European Candle Association) decided to join forces.

Vision & Mission

ECMA is the full-service provider for candle makers in Europe and their suppliers. As the candle industry's collective voice, it makes sure that the candle makers' interests are heard and understood.

ECMA promotes the safe use and enjoyment of candles, increases the knowledge and safety, and takes an active role in developing the regulatory and normative environment. It helps its members comply with legal, normative and customer-specific requirements and promotes fair competition.

Objectives

- Informing about and participating in developing the regulatory environment
- Promoting standardisation, the safe use and enjoyment of candles and selected accessories
- Providing advice to help its members comply with legal, normative and customer-specific requirements
- Promoting fair competition and the economic and commercial interests and competitiveness of all members
- Conducting and commissioning research to increase knowledge and develop the state-of-the-art further
- Responding to unsubstantiated allegations related to the candle industry
- Producing reports, statistics, studies, brochures and other relevant information on the candle industry
- Organising conferences, seminars and other events on and for the candle industry
- Providing a platform for networking between the members
